MIGUEL COTTO: Manny picked the wrong man, the wrong moment. If he thinks he's going to win this one, he's wrong.

Manny fights for history

He hopes to become the first boxer to win a 7th world title in 7 weight divisions

LAS VEGAS—THEY stood on the edge of a makeshift stage, their stripped bodies against a backdrop of a billboard bearing their larger-than-life images.

In the realm of science, they are the irresistible force and the immovable object—concepts that can only exist in the absence of the other.

And yet here they are, their paths inevitably on a collision course.

They are better known as Manny Pacquiao and Miguel Cotto, and in front of their cheering supporters and under the glare of stadium lights and flashing Friday at the MGM Grand Arena, they eliminated the final hurdle—the weight—in the battle they must wage Sunday night (Sunday morning in Manila).

Pacquiao, already the superior hurtling through the boxing universe at breakneck speed, tipped the scales at 144 pounds, one under the catch weight of Saturday's bout where he hopes to become the first boxer to win a seventh world title in as many divisions.

He has won the world championships in the flyweight (112 pounds), super bantamweight (122 lb), featherweight (126 lb), super featherweight (130 lb), lightweight (135 lb), and light welterweight (140 lb).

No man has won seven world titles in seven weight divisions and only five boxers have won six—Pacquiao, Oscar de la Hoya, Thomas Hearns, Hector Camacho and James Toney.

"This is my most important fight because if I win, I'll be making history for myself and my country," said the 35-year-old southpaw.

Nature, culture put RP on NatGeo 'must' list

By Kristine L. Alano

AFTER NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC magazine included the Philippines in its list of "25 Best New Travel Destinations in the World in 2010," it appeared the country had finally overcome the "bad PR" that had caused tourists to shun it and head for its garbage-littered neighbors.

Travel excitement began peaking as the word the country is one of the most exciting and undiscovered places that tourists should begin exploring now.

The list, published in National Geographic's November her 2009 Adventure issue, is directed at "travelers who want their money to do more—for others, for the planet and for themselves."

It cited the Philippines' ancient culture, architecture and biodiversity as key reasons for visiting the country.

Tourism Undersecretary Eduardo Jaque Jr. said the Department of Tourism was thrilled that the Philippines was getting the attention of travelers.

"We're very pleased. It's also very nice to be part of a list that people want to see," he said. He noted that it was the first time

SINGAPORE—THREE GOOD REASONS "Kodak moment" here.

President Macapagal-Arroyo missed a photo op on Friday night, apparently courtesy of a big Vietnamese delegation that kept her from the red carpet but not the front of the Singaporean Press Photo.

Wearing a blazer and veil, Ms. Arroyo and her entourage arrived in Singapore's Changi International Airport.

Thrilling discovery: Lots of water on moon

LOS ANGELES—SUDDENLY, THE moon looks exciting again. It has lots of water, scientists say Friday (Saturday in Manila)—a thrilling discovery that sent a ripple of hope for a future astronaut outpost in a place that has always seemed barren and inhospitable.

Experts have long suspected there was water on the moon. Confirmation came from data shared up by two NASA spacecraft that occasionally slammed into a lunar crater last month.

"Indeed, yes, we found water. And we didn't find just a little bit. We found a significant amount," said Anthony Colaprete, the principal investigator for NASA's Lunar Crater Observation and Sensing Satellite, holding up a white water bottle for emphasis.

The lunar crash landed up at least 95 liters (25 gallons) and that's only what scientists could see from the photos of the impact, Colaprete said.

Some space policy experts say that makes the moon attractive for exploration again. Having an abundance of water would make it easier to set up a base camp for astronauts, supplying drinking water and a key ingredient for rocket fuel.

Scientists also hope that the water, in the form of ice concentrated over billions of years, holds a record of the solar system's history.

The satellite, known as Lunar Reconnaissance Orbiter, crashed into a crater near the Moon's south pole a month ago. The 9,800-kilometer-per-hour impact carved out a hole 20 to 30 meters wide and kicked up the bits of water in the form of ice and vapor.

The water findings came through an analysis of the slight shifts in color after the impact, showing telltale signs of water molecules that had absorbed

MILF: Obama wrote us, we met top US state dep't execs before Hillary visit

By Allan Nolasco
and Rosa May de Guzman

DAVAO CITY—OFFICIALS OF THE separation issue Islamic Liberation Front (OILF) met with a top ranking official of the US government six days before US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton visited the Philippines.

In a statement issued yesterday, MILF secretary chair Muhammad Arroyo said the meeting between US Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Scott Marston and MILF chief negotiator Mulugetta Ighal took place in Manila City on Nov. 6.

Marston was accompanied by Leslie Robert and Michael Pignatelli, US Embassy deputy chief of mission and second secretary (political division), respectively, and another US official, Arroyo said.

Clinton arrived in the Philippines on Nov. 12. Part of her two-day visit was a meeting with President Macapagal-Arroyo.

At a forum held at the University of Santo Tomas on Nov. 13, Clinton said the US government would help facilitate the peace process between the Philippine government and the MILF.

She said the two camps should not waste time in forging a peace agreement before Ms. Arroyo steps down in 2010. (See related story on Page A15.)

The MILF had earlier issued a statement calling on Clinton to help ensure the Arroyo administration to sign a peace agreement with it.

"Clinton can influence and convince the government [to agree to] an early release of the Mindanao conflict. When it happens, it will lead to peace and it would be of advantage to all of us," MILF political affairs chairperson Asafat had said.

It was not clear if Ighal relayed the

RP, Thailand hurdle bump in rice deal

THE PHILIPPINE AND THAI GOVERNMENTS on Friday reached "a major understanding" about rice, paving the way for negotiations to settle tariff and quota issues to move forward, according to a trade official.

Thailand's main concern during meetings held in Singapore was how long an amount of rice it would be allowed to supply the Philippines, said Assistant Secretary Thomas Kabiligan, director of the Bureau of International Trade Relations.

The Thais wanted to know if they would be given a quota and prevented from selling more rice than would be agreed on in a memorandum of agreement, Kabiligan said.

"I doubt very much that they will be prevented from selling more," he said in an interview with reporters.

"I told them it would all depend on their competitiveness. If they can sell what we need at competitive prices, then of course they can sell to us," Kabiligan said.

He said the MRB, as well as a tariff, depending on Thailand's concerns, would be sent to the Thai government to discuss in a week.

Talks between the Philippines and Thailand on the rice issue have done little so far. At the 20th Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) summit in Thailand, as both governments reportedly lock their positions. Abigail S. Cho

Kids learn discipline in Davao home school

By Ma. Cecilia L. Rodriguez
Davao City

PROUDLY THE GATES OF THE GREEN Mountain Academy, the 10,000-sq-ft pre-arranged pre-arranged home school in Davao City is an old single storey, built by brick and masonry, with white walls and roof. Unknown to the public, Father Alex, alias Oscar Flores, runs the school to ensure his students are learning discipline and respect to his students in the academy.

"I was very happy to know from the owner that not a single hour from the academy was wasted. You look at those students, entering, leaving, you can imagine the discipline and self-control my students had in me," said Flores, who is also fondly called Father Alex, with respect.

Meanwhile, when he was 27, Father Alex, then an employee in a major company, worked about the kind of school his children would pick-up from their class neighborhood.

"When my children go to school, I worry that when they get back home they will be missing the school already," he admits.

It was also at this time that the young father was, as he calls it, "called to the country" by his family to help and the business then the community peace problems then present on how to overcome this reality.

"I enrolled at the Bible School, I was here that I finally decided to put up a home school," Father Alex recalls.

ACE system

The system of education originated in the US state of Tennessee, is known as being in a free and independent of home school, which adopted innovation, individualized techniques in education, with emphasis on Christian education and values formation.

Also known as the Accelerated Christian Education or ACE, the curriculum is based on about 400 subjects of core that the students, according to the website, emphasize, the school of Tennessee "to meet these quality standards."

"The curriculum is built on a biblical philosophy foundation, students learn to see life from God's point of view. Their personal relationship with God and their personal responsibility to family, church and community are of primary concern," it says.

The education standards are by the ACE are recognized by the state to be quality to be achieved.

Debra Hogen, executive director of the school of Tennessee (Philippines), says of its curriculum: "The school of Tennessee will be consistent for those who use the curriculum, which is individualized, accepted and improved, and procedures (developing character with each component). The different programs...all continue to make a consistent of value."

For Father Alex, the purpose of establishing the home school was mainly personal. "My original objective in setting up the school is to ensure that my children and maybe the children of my neighbors will get good education and proper values," he says.

Finally in 2006, the Green Mountain Academy opened with 30 students. Through the support of his church members and community, Father Alex started to build a modern school for his children and right now he is looking for more students.

He supervised the construction of a two-story building that houses two big classrooms, one each for elementary and high school, and two accommodation rooms for the students. Within the compound, he built the chapel and his own house, where his family had been staying all this time.

Over the years, the school grew to a full pre-school, elementary and secondary learning center with 110 students and eight teachers on learning center supervision.

Conservative principles

The school uses as a guideline the five conservative principles followed by the school of Tennessee system.

- Students must be at individual levels where they can perform.
- Reasonable goals must be set.
- Students must be motivated and encouraged.
- Learning must be measurable.
- Learning must be rewarded.

Non-academic

Father Alex's school is totally different from conventional schools with a typical formal classroom setting. Instead of a classroom, the students go to a "subject area/learning center" with individual tables for each student.

Grades 1 to 6 students share the room which is supervised by their superiors and their mothers.

Documented in his own website, the school's history with the ACE system of Tennessee is as follows:

collected Christian Education) website which he reviews at the end of the semester. He knows Math, Science, reading, Philosophy, History and English, as well as subject matter in using equipment-machinery.

But every morning he studies, the morning or afternoon study on his school project, after-school.

"If the student works fast, he may be accelerated to the next grade level. Grades are based on the final exams," Father Alex explains.

"When we were meeting, there were religious that the students are not in 7th grade," he says. "This only by the fact that the students are not in 7th grade because we get the students from directly from Tennessee. But now we are allowed to create the students and promote them here," he says.

SCHOOL SPIRIT

A village starts over: Life after the storm

By Henry C. Canajol

ARMED WITH PICKS AND shovels, and overflowing with the spirit of bayanihan (community effort), employees and students of Marikina College in Quezon City dug into dried mud, cleaned up walls, cleared floors, washed dirty jars and plates, dusted cabinets, checked electrical wires and did minor repairs of their colleagues' (or mothers') houses located in Montalban, Rizal province that were severely damaged by Tropical Storm "Ondoy."

Networking

"We took advantage of the school shed down to help members of the Marikina community who needed a boost. After all, cleaning implies at least," said Lander T. Jandre, executive director of the school's community network for Social Action (NSA).

Service to others

The organization promotes and builds awareness among students, teachers and staff on global and national issues. Jandre said the operation to help them to employees was a first for them because it involved helping victims they knew personally.

He explained that just of NSA's goal was to teach the students to be socially aware and oriented toward serving others.

Social responsibility

The cleanup drive was a part of its pre-graduate teacher education community service and, at the same time, help them develop their academic skills and sense of social responsibility, Jandre added.

Around 120 students from Marikina College participated in the cleanup operation, along a five-kilometer stretch all the way to (De La Cruz's) Subdivision in San Jose Bayan, Montalban.

The school also provided financial aid to the victims and even gave "extra change money" through counseling, services conducted by experts hired by the college.

Rebuilding and rehabilitation

"We thought of the cleanup because it is one of the most important aspects of rebuilding and rehabilitation," Jandre explained.

The operation was done in a systematic and sequential way to accomplish the objectives.

"We learned that some of those affected by the typhoon had hired people to clean their houses who failed to do the job," she said. "We had to do it correctly, otherwise, everything would be a waste of time and money."

Orientation seminar

To do that, an orientation seminar was conducted before cleanup day. Volunteers were taught to clean the walls properly, leaving the job from the top and making sure they were, among other things.

Emotional experience

"Some there was a lot of personal, but unexpressed, we were able to clean the job at the end of the day," Jandre said.

Resurreta Bayan, a teacher of DGA, for its house, reported at least a billion of dried mud remained from the landscape of her and her colleagues' houses.

Bayan's good friend, as well as the wife died by her colleagues, had Mrs. Canajol of shared up.

Overwhelmed

"I am overwhelmed by my employees and parents," said Canajol, whose house was submerged in Bayan. She was sleep and failed to sleep when the water receded. "I don't think I will be able to thank them enough."

Suspected cell phone thief shot dead by cops

By John M. Avarino

POLICEMEN SHOT DEAD A MAN SUSPECTED of stealing the cell phone of a politician standing in front of a mall in Quezon City early yesterday morning. The slain suspect, who was wearing a cap, shirt and shorts, was identified from his ID as Ian Arceles of Magog, Marikina City resident.

Operations of the Quezon City Police District's Macabang police station lived down at the most subdued point—a gun in possession who responded to a call for help.

Case investigator P212 Melencio, Jr. son of the QCP's Criminal Investigation and Forensic Unit said the victim, Mark David Gilardo, 36, was robbed of his mobile cell phone worth P1,000 at least before the suspect was shot.

Recovered

Police were able to recover the victim's cell phone as well as a loaded caliber .28 revolver from the suspect.

Gilardo, a dancer and resident of Makabang, said police that he was arrested by Arceles while he was waiting for a ride in front of SM North Edo at the corner of North Ave. and Edo at around 4 a.m. The victim said he was on his way to visit his girlfriend when the suspect suddenly appeared and, armed with a handgun, threatened to hurt him unless he turned over his cell phone.

"I begged the guy if he only said told me to give up my cell phone. I gave it to him and ran away," Gilardo told reporters.

Police report

The station immediately reported the incident to the Macabang police station and accompanied a team led by its lieutenant in looking for the suspect.

Arceles said the team spotted Arceles walking near the corner of Edo and North Edo streets in Barangay Bangkal at around 5 a.m.

The victim recognized the man as the person who took his phone, prompting responding police to call out to Arceles.

"Arceles showed a pistol on three occasions but, but instead of handing their cell, Arceles pointed a gun at the law enforcers," Melencio said.

Gilardo said he ducked for cover upon seeing Arceles's drawn handgun as the policemen fired shots at the suspect.

The suspect suffered two gunshot wounds to the head and torso.

Simple gifts from the heart touch needy students of Bagong Silangan school

By Marion Barrios

HERNANDEZ LIANG WOULD NOT believe the better notes sent by him to himself this Christmas through by Tropical Storm "Ondoy" in their community in East Pasig, Quezon City on Sept. 26.

Liang, who moved to the middle-class community with his family several years ago, said he thought then there would be quiet when foodstuffs inundated the metropolitan.

"I was in our house at that stage day. I was sure the floodwaters would get over such the address in our village," he said.

To verify for receiving the better presents at the University of the Philippines decided to take a walk around his community for a bit of "no-misconception."

Waterway community

It was only then that he realized that dozens of families had already made a home along a waterway close to their children.

They named this bagong barrio, the place was home on hundreds of informal settlers beside the Nilubao River.

"I was really shocked with what I saw. Most of the families there were swept away by the water when the river swelled," he said.

But what struck him most, he said, was the sight of mothers helping their children dry their soaked schoolbags under the sun.

And Liang: "That scene just ended my instincts as a teacher and historian as one. I wish I could help these kids save the lessons written in their notebooks."

Valuable notes

"As a historian, I was content to value more written down even an small piece of paper," said Liang, who has been teaching history at the University of the Philippines Diliman campus in Quezon City for over 20 years now.

Before he headed home, he already set his mind on helping the schoolbags dry under the sun that "Ondoy" caused them. By providing them with notebooks.

Linked resources

"Instead of bringing their notebook or school books, I said, why not more books? It was a simple, yet very valuable donation for students," he said.

Liang knew the task would be a tedious drudgery for him, being a government employee with a slim pay check.

Like many Filipinos did, he shared his Ondoy experience in a personal account on the web-Liang noted another website linkbook.

Hope for children

"The idea was simply to show how all of us can help others in need, and the lesson that may be shared in making service donation reach the recipients," he wrote in his linkbook at www.care4.jp.

How do we keep them alive?

There is still today
to be healed.

notes

It's not about receiving the damaged items, but giving the thoughtful donor a chance to start again and help them begin for a better future," Llanos told the KKK.

Llanos immediately after he got a response from a US-based fraternity "got" from the PI Sigma Gamma fraternity who wanted to help the book donation.

Timely visit

The student fraternity "book" from the PI Sigma Gamma also expressed their will, again to help bring the US professor's medical assistance ending.

Llanos and his wife is the principal of Laguna Elementary School (LSES) in the city of Laguna, Laguna, Laguna City, Laguna City, Laguna City.

City, the village was one of the worst hit areas in Metro Manila.

Major loss

"The principal said all of these students lost their notebooks and lost books after the floods," he recounted.

"It also asked for school uniforms. But I said this was something separate because we could probably provide because our funding was limited," Llanos said with a laugh.

Ready with plan

In two weeks' time, Llanos was ready to carry out his plan after collecting a substantial amount of cash donations from his "book" and "uniform."

But, one question remained unanswered: How do we distribute the notebooks?

Distribution network

Llanos and other PI Sigma members in Laguna City volunteered to step around in low priced notebooks and distribute them to students who lost them during the typhoon.

With Llanos' efforts, the fraternity members were able to give out notebooks to 4,000 grade one and grade two pupils in 2003 and Laguna Elementary School (LES).

Last Tuesday, 5,000 notebooks were distributed to South Laguna Elementary School, LES and LES.

To the provinces, too

Following the one hour Llanos' efforts, the fraternity also brought notebooks and relief goods to the public schools in Laguna, Laguna province and Nagsara in the province of Negros Occidental.

"We members as it may seem, our notebook campaign was well appreciated by the residents. Seeing themselves was strongly for us to be inspired and continue what we have started," said lawyer Ben Lim, who led the notebook distribution to the provinces.

New evidence in Dacer-Corbetta case allowed

A SANAA court has allowed representative to present additional evidence in the 2006 Dacer-Corbetta murder case. Under New 11-11-06, Judge Maria Garcia Fernandez, of Manila regional trial court Branch-18, granted the motion of the Department of Justice to represent additional evidence. The court said it found merit in the position of the prosecution that the additional evidence to be presented, which included the testimony of former Sgt. Glenn Corbetta, was inadmissible at the time before the prosecution started its case because the latter had succeeded over the availability of Dacer who had yet to be established from abroad. The court said that except for the prosecution—Thomas Samson, Margie-Corona, Corbetta-Perez, Corbetta-Perez, Corbetta-Perez and Corbetta-Perez—who had opposed the motion, the rest of the court did not object to the reopening of the prosecution evidence. —Dina G. Fire hits Meralco substation in Las Pinas

A fire of still unidentified origin hit a Meralco substation inside a residential village in Las Pinas City yesterday yesterday. Fire investigator Superintendent said the fire, coming from a small power line inside the Meralco compound in the Cacho Village, Las Pinas City, was first noticed by the on-duty guard who immediately reported the incident to the police at 6:00 PM. The fire was put out at 6:15 PM. Police said they are investigating the damage to the substation and the cause of the fire. —John Carber for Cebu

Much ado about fat transplant

DR. MANUEL E. FERNANDEZ, JR.

A technique for transplantation is nothing new and has been around for many years. This procedure has been used with varying success in the US, but has been gaining popularity because of volunteers or techniques that improve results. Endogenous fat transplants have been used to correct any anatomical, congenital or physiological defects or distortions in the skin. Examples of these are various defects on the face from scars, loss of volume from fat loss aging or from HIV, psoriasis and to augment the breasts in females of the breast.

The primary problem with some doctors has been to find techniques to use the autologous material from the fat to fill and thicken the sagging or wrinkled skin. With the advent of utilizing these cells from one's own fat to use "Autologous Serum Cells" (ASC), the removal of the fat cells mixed with the ASC, stabilized serum cells and then the improvement has begun.

There are basically two kinds of Stem Cells. One is the embryonic stem cells which are called such a name from the Church and other religious orders that research on this was prohibited. Another kind is the adult stem cells which are called such a name from the Church and other religious orders that research on this was prohibited. Another kind is the adult stem cells which are called such a name from the Church and other religious orders that research on this was prohibited.

Recent technology has made it possible to isolate stem cells from adipose tissue of fat tissue and therefore we can now get fat from the patient, isolate the stem cells in the operating room and to inject the pure lines of the stem cells under the skin to be fat and achieve regeneration in skin. It will be the patient's own fat and to repair the tissue under the skin to correct volume loss from aging or any chronic diseases and use for small skin to improve the breast in females. Recently, it has been used successfully to correct the defects after a liposuction or from a period of liposuction, sometimes instead of the classical skin lift surgery, one can get away with just a fat lift to transplant because the volume replacement in other techniques and tighten the skin.

In this sense we are using the patient's own fat transplants to treat the skin like the synthetic fillers in the market. The main advantage is that you do it first and you cannot get any reaction or adverse reactions to your own fat. The synthetic fillers have the place to store information that during your with the severe procedure of getting over the fat.

Finally, the use of one's own fat to improve the breast and breast is becoming popular in parts of Asia and Europe instead of using breast implants or breast implants which are foreign bodies. It feels more natural and also decreases the risk of the cancer. The only setback, when used for breast and breasts is that you have to have enough tissue fat.

Dr. Manuel E. Fernandez, Jr. is a U.S. Board Certified cosmetic surgeon and head of the Institute Center of Makati Medical Center. He has received recognition in Europe and Asia to study the technology of stem cells for treatment with adipose-derived stem cells. Dr. Fernandez is also the chairman of the Philippine Board of Cosmetic Surgery, International Symposium on the Philippines in 1993 and has been doing fat Transplant Surgery for more than 15 years.

'Most beautiful (Fil-Am) captain there is'

IS THIS THE LITTLE GIRL I CARRIED? After more than a year of duty in Iraq, Capt. Vanessa Yan, a member of the 4th Fleet Brigade of the United States, is welcomed by her parents Ador and Germaine "Colie" Reyes. Yan, who holds a purple heart, was deployed to Afghanistan.

Letter from a proud father

(Sender is Dr. Ador Bernardo Yan of Grosse Ile, Michigan who writes about his daughter, Capt. Vanessa Yan, to his sister Bella Yan-Ramirez in Manila. He is a graduate of the College of Medicine, University of the Philippines, 1951. His wife Colie is a BSN graduate from New Foundland, Canada.)

Dear Bella,

Enclosed are some pictures taken when Vanessa arrived from Iraq. We were informed that Vanessa's brigade was scheduled to arrive at the Fort Hood gymnasium at 5:30 a.m. We were at the gymnasium at 5:15 a.m. They were playing patriotic music until the soldiers arrived and everybody was not late.

When 5:30 came, everybody became quiet and was watching the door of the gymnasium. It was a very emotional moment when the soldiers started coming in. Colie and I had tears flowing as soon as we saw Vanessa. Even though Vanessa is 25 years old, I still think of her (not Colie) as my baby and I just could not imagine my baby being in harm's way in Iraq for more than a year.

Of course, we all hugged and kissed after they were dismissed after singing the National Anthem. Ador and Colie, Vanessa's first child, just hugged Vanessa and refused to let her go.

When Vanessa left yesterday, Monday, he was hugging Vanessa and crying and did not want to go to the airport. I had to babysit him while they were gone.

I think I mentioned that Vanessa is important to have her own party in one of my e-mails. That is arranged 120 miles. She will be sent to Virginia for more captain's training. After that, she does not know where she will be assigned, and we hope it won't be Afghanistan. All Colie and I are sure of, she is the most beautiful captain there is.

Love,
Heaven Colie

NON-AND WOMAN-OF HONOR Captain Yan (second from right) with her colleagues return to Fort Hood in Texas in August 2009 after 14 months of duty in Iraq.

LUCIA MAY REIGNED A US citizen in Hong Kong, during one of her business trips, Lucia and Richard got married. Both of them lived in the Philippines and they decided to transfer their residence to the United States and make their permanent home there. Lucia and Richard had an immigrant petition for Lucia. While the petition was pending, Richard suffered a massive heart attack and died in 2008.

Lucia was told that with the death of her US citizen husband, the petition filed on her behalf was automatically revoked. She also could not file as a self-petitioning widow of a US citizen because their marriage was not for less than five years.

Lucia was devastated by the loss of her husband made worse by the revocation of her opportunity to stay in the US.

Widow's penalty voids

Recently, Lucia learned about a bill that was signed into law allowing widows to file for their own immigrant visa. This bill will allow widows whose marriages lasted less than five years to get a green card. What is the new law?

Immigrant petition no longer dies with petitioner

On Oct. 28, 2009, President Barack Obama signed into law the Department of Homeland Security Appropriations Bill. Conference Report that contains immigration provisions benefiting widows and certain survivors of US citizen petitioners.

Prior to the passage of Public Law Number 111-40, petition filed for spouses of US citizens are automatically revoked as soon as the petitioner dies. Only those widows married to US citizens for at least two years were allowed to self-petition for their own green cards. Those whose marriages lasted less than two years were not given the same opportunity.

The signing of the new law changes the rules.

It removes the two-year marriage requirement for all cases a widow or widower filed less than two years at the time of the US citizen spouse's death to file an I-360 application. This law does not require that the US citizen spouse has ever filed a petition. However, it

Lucia May Reigned
Reigned

expands that the surviving spouse has not remarried.

Displaced children less than 21 years old of the widow or widower will be included under Form I-360. If the petition is approved, the surviving minor children may also obtain their immigrant visas.

But the widows who are outside the US, they can apply for the I-360 petition and/or as immigrant visa following the approval of the petition. This deadline for filing this self-petition is Oct. 28, 2011.

Other survivors

Other than the surviving spouse of the US citizen, certain relatives of deceased petitioners also are granted immigration benefits by the new law in child of a US citizen, spouse of a child of a US citizen, brother or sister of a citizen, (2) stepchildren based on dependent (derivative) beneficiaries, (3) stepchildren based on dependent beneficiaries, (4) non-immigrant in "T" (visas of transition to receive their immigrant visas).

The requirements are: (1) there is a petition filed by the US citizen which has been approved as well pending on behalf of the survivor, (2) the survivor beneficiary or derivative beneficiary resided in the US at the time of the death of the petitioner, and (3) beneficiary was in the US at the time of the death of the petitioner.

Residing outside the US

A significant requirement that must be noted is that the beneficiary must be residing in the US. The following are the survivors covered by the law: (1) immediate relatives to include the spouse, parent, and child of a US citizen; (2) family preference relatives (unmarried son or daughter of a US citizen, married son or daughter of a US citizen, spouse of a child of a US citizen); (3) stepchildren based on dependent (derivative) beneficiaries; (4) stepchildren based on dependent beneficiaries; (5) non-immigrant in "T" (visas of transition to receive their immigrant visas and (6) non-immigrant in "T" (visas of transition to receive their immigrant visas).

For widows/widowers, there is no requirement that they should have resided in the US at the time of the death of their US citizen spouse as they continue to reside in the US, even if they reside in the Philippines, for example, they may still file an I-360 self-petition.

However, the certain other categories in the other categories, the law is clear that the widows should be in the US at the time of the death of the petitioner and should continue to reside there to benefit under the new law.

Waiting for CIS regulations

The law also states that the petition also only applies to survivors who do not meet the above-mentioned requirements.

It is anticipated that the new law limits the applicability of the new provisions.

It would have been more justified if it applies to all survivors whether or not they are residing in the US. The law seems to address only the petition of undocumented survivors of deceased petitioners.

Since Public Law 111-40 was passed and signed into law last month, the application of the provision will depend on regulations that will be released by the Department of Homeland Security. Until then, certain survivors should wait before filing any immigration forms at the Citizenship and Immigration Service.

It is important to emphasize that while this is an added immigration benefit for widows/widowers and survivors of deceased petitioners, this coverage is very limited and to certain categories of survivors.

Since one is sure that he is qualified for this survivor's immigration benefits, the petition should not be made immediately without proper guidance. One has to be sure that the petition is not made in vain which may have serious consequences.

Alleged 9/11 mastermind to be tried in New York

RAMBOWITZ... THE DRAMA administration tried to delay it will prosecute Mohd bin Usayb al-Muhammad, the self-described mastermind of the Sept. 11 attacks, in a Manhattan federal courtroom, a decision that is still a political thorn in his back. A stop instruction ending use of the news granting access to the court is pending.

The decision, announced by the U.S. District Court in New York, could mean, one of the highest-profile and highest-security terrorism trials in history would be set for the federal court in New York. The federal court in New York is the only federal court in the United States that has a federal judge who is a Muslim.

But while the federal court is the most likely to hear the case, the federal court in New York is the only federal court in the United States that has a federal judge who is a Muslim.

There is a military trial scheduled for al-Muhammad in New York, who is accused of plotting the Sept. 11 attacks. The federal court in New York is the only federal court in the United States that has a federal judge who is a Muslim.

Obama vows deeper US ties with Asia

TOKYO—PRESIDENT BARACK OBAMA declared on Saturday that an era of American disengagement in the globe's fastest-growing region is over and warned that the US and its Asian partners "will not be crossed" by North Korea's continued defiance over its nuclear weapons and other provocations.

Obama also said a robust US role should be welcomed, not feared, as a powerful partner on regional challenges. Addressing economic and security threats from China's rising might and Asian skepticism about US leadership, the president said, "We welcome Obama's efforts to play a greater role in the world stage, a role in which these growing economies are joined by growing responsibility."

In a 40-minute speech, Obama offered incentives by South Korea to abandon the nuclear weapons it is believed to already have, and the production program, it continued its defiance of UN Security Council resolutions. He outlined a possible future of economic opportunity and greater global greater respect, saying, "This region cannot be crossed through indifference."

"It should be clear where that path leads," Obama said. "We will continue to work to draw our eyes through our actions, and not just our words. South Korea refused to start its unprovoked aggression will lead only to loss, security and more."

More broadly, the president's address to 1,500 prominent Americans at a meeting downtown Tokyo's resort hotel was intended to showcase a United States that, under Obama's leadership, seeks deeper engagement in Asia. It was the fifth major foreign address of the 48-month presidency. He marked the occasion by highlighting his audience, including calling himself America's first Pacific president, "celebrating the historic time in Indonesia and Hawaii in Asia, and visiting the residents of Obama's Japan."

Addressing Asia's growing power and the perceptions here of America's parallel decline, Obama also had said the chief aim for his eight-day trip through Asia would be to reach out to "bring home specific 'deliverables' but to a more important point: that the US very much is in the Asian game."

Obama said Washington would seek to strengthen relations in Asia, such as with Japan and South Korea, build up ties with nations like China and Indonesia, and increase participation with a burgeoning global mix of Asia-Pacific regional organizations. AP

IN HIS SQUARED PHOTO, Hong Tien-tai, a visiting President of the Philippine Airlines

By Liza Dizon
Contributor

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—The last time I interviewed her, President Manlapit-Arroyo had a level for an afternoon rehearsal. She is known to be abnormally. Which is why I was rather surprised when I traveled on proof that she must be a steak lover, or at least she knows her steak. For when she is in the San Francisco Bay Area, she makes it a point to drop by Broadway Prime, a snug, Old World-style diner in downtown San Francisco, a five-minute drive off the 101 South Freeway from the San Francisco International Airport.

In fact, according to her biography, Hong, 47, the Arroyo was scheduled to drop by on a report on her way home from her last visit to the White House. She had to cancel after learning of the death of a personhood named, Corason Aquino, whose wife she had to be again delirious as the filly Aquino International Airport.

As proof that she must be a steak lover, she has a picture of herself beside the Arroyo in the bulletin board in the diner's entrance. For sometime they have made the Arroyo's presence in fact, Hong may be obvious to the fact that many of the Filipino community find Philippine politics (and this photo) repulsive. It is apparently not enough to keep them away from the restaurant, well-kept, medium-sized meat, that has been Broadway Prime's signature.

Recession favorite

As the recession hits, Broadway Prime's popularity would arise in the restaurant's popularity. Particularly during this recession, when many of its neighboring establishments are now waiting for customers. Broadway Prime almost always has a crowd filling by 10:00 a.m.

Hong kept his customers customer some 2,000 people a day—of America's press-out most a week. She is why three years ago, he got himself his own meat locker to be sure his beef is his specific source.

So, they come for the cooked meat—gourmet portions of other prime ribs or their beef cut, with luxurious helpings of

Meet the man behind Malacañang state dinners

For Miguel Miñana, it's a job that calls for flair, precision and organization. The waiters are the first line of defense,' he says

By Christo V. Moral

IT'S A FEW DAYS BEFORE US State Secretary Hillary Clinton's brief Philippine visit. But Miguel Miñana is nowhere near the trouble in Malacañang. He is elsewhere in the city, preparing instead a small corporate event for Philippine Shell or Manila Polo Club.

The fact typifies the man who has been directing technical and logistical aspects of all big dinners and events for many of the state dinners since 2001. The three weeks in the lead-up to a state visit are usually his busiest days for him.

"Dinner said it will be a small dinner in any residential scenario," he explains, referring to the Clinton Function. Miñana is Malacañang Social Secretary Benito Abella.

Benigno Aquino III's state visit, 10 years has been the first for all state dinners and several major state dinners, including the Asian summit and US President George W. Bush's state visit. He was also the first to be seated at the head of the table at the Malacañang Palace.

The beautiful celebration of a 10th-anniversary affair is largely owed to Malacañang's state dinners, behind the scenes.

"My job is to make sure, my job is to make sure," he says. "That's how the President wants it. It's not a plan to make sure, the next one is planned. Subsequent. There's a plan and program in the service." Working closely with Aquino, "I take care of the President's state dinners."

He took his first planning and organizing as a state dinner in 1990. He was the first to be seated at the head of the table at the Malacañang Palace. He was the first to be seated at the head of the table at the Malacañang Palace.

Light-and-sound, art production heralds Ayala Triangle Gardens

By Margo C. Thompson
Photos by Helene Matsuzawa

The unveiling of the Ayala Triangle Gardens on Nov. 11 will be marked by an exhibit of abstract sculpture and kinetic installations and a three-day-themed festival of lights.

Located at the heart of the Central Business District, this, within the largest public development—25,000 sq. m. of well-maintained lawns, tree-lined pathways and 400,000 sq. m. of office space—will be a place to relax and enjoy the city's new skyline.

Although the new public space is a landmark, it will primarily serve to offer visitors a place to relax and enjoy the city's new skyline.

Warming up with 'Pacman' and Piolo

For the 2009 Times Run with Piolo Pascual heading the field, I will be gunning for a personal best in my 21K just so I can be at the finish line early for a photo-op with him.

ONCE AGAIN, this whole nation is excited, all of us are cheering our loving hero, Piolo Pascual, as he fights the victory and makes history today. And about the same time that the first run is starting, I will also be warming up, but for the 2009 Times Run at The Port.

TV heartthrob Piolo Pascual heads up the field at the Times Run and I will be gunning for a personal best in my 21K just so I can be at the finish line early for a photo-op with him. Lots of special prizes are available so this will be a bonus for everyone to join.

Times has been a generous sponsor of so many athletic events. Just a few months ago, they were our exclusive for the 2009 Times Run along with A&P, the star brand of choice after doing all that running.

Next week, Times is also sponsoring the 2009 Philippine Air Sports Festival in Singapore, featuring the Philippine Air Sports Festival. It's a great opportunity for the Philippine Air Sports Festival to be held in Singapore. It's a great opportunity for the Philippine Air Sports Festival to be held in Singapore. It's a great opportunity for the Philippine Air Sports Festival to be held in Singapore.

There are so many exciting activities happening on the side of the shopping world. Even if I am a busy girl, I don't mind heading to the Gateway Mall in Pasig City to enjoy a movie premiere, at the same time, I can also enjoy the 2009 Times Run.

My last trip to Germany was for the exclusive viewing of "The Great Escape," with a film festival party hosted by TV. I must say, I was able to see the premiere of the movie.

How I discovered the joy of being alone

ROOTS AND WINGS

Cathy Barbara Ceballos

One of the more practical tips is for one to move to a naturally lit area when overcome by gloom or doom

"It is not measured by the number of branches we take but by the number that take our branch away..."

BREATHFOOL: CEBALLOS—Every morning for the last week or so, a cousin like no other greets me on the terrace I work on.

When I first came to this remote house, I was frightened by the silence. The silence was deafening, a solitary house on a hill surrounded by 17 acres of gentle hills and valleys surrounded by silence was all around. A couple of days later, solitude has become my new best friend.

Out here, the morning silence was a testimony of magnificent peaks and blues.

Each day I take down the hill and find a little bit of life. In this time, I don't see much, though water is much needed. I walk over to my "laughter spot" on the property and write on my journal as I look to the clouds on my tip which my laughter had brought me together for me before I left Manila last week.

In the late afternoon, I walk the laboratory behind the house and watch the sunset painting the sky some strange glow on the mountain.

Ben10 and Powerpuff Girls Join Shakey's Parties

With the recent tie-up of Shakey's and Cartoon Network, little girls can now dream of Don Power with the Powerpuff Girls and little boys can dream of Ben Tennyson with Ben10.

The weekend for the first time in the Shakey's history is a special event for the little girls and boys.

Every child dreams of having a birthday party. It is a time when they can play with their friends and have a special day. Shakey's is a place where they can have a special day.

A Yuletide Celebration at the SM Mall of Asia A World of Christmas Wonders

A Grand Festival of Lights

Last year marked the debut of the Grand Festival of Lights, an enchanting parade of glowing lights, colorful floats, and characters that only a mall of MYOs size and caliber can pull off. The Grand Festival of Lights is back this year with bigger and better floats from SM Department Store, Santa Ride Center, Ballena, New Hardware, MDO Festival Science Discovery Center, and more!

Don't miss 4th spectacle of lights and colors in SMOA North and South Atriums on Saturdays from November 28 to December 26, 5:30 PM.

Hear the Sounds of Christmas

Shoppers can get a welcome break from the busy bustle of holiday shopping with Christmas songs from around the world with the singing morning choir of Musical of Elements Around the World. The larger-than-life musical costumes performances play hourly from 11 AM to 5 PM daily, so shoppers can catch these anytime during mall hours. Children and adults alike will certainly enjoy this interesting Christmas Wonderland feature, which also provides an accurately detailed representation of holiday traditions from different corners of the globe.

Sounds of Christmas Around the World plays daily on hourly intervals from 11 AM to 5 PM at the Main Mall Atrium, ready to amuse, entertain, and give MIA's shoppers a wonderful musical break from holiday shopping.

Spectacular Holiday Pyromusical Shows

Excuses for staying longer! Spectacular shows with state-of-the-art

A Gallery of Christmas Trees

Children and adults alike can drop by the Main Mall Atrium on all weekdays from November 27 to welcome to Santa Claus! Hear their Christmas wishes. Santa is waiting by the fireplace with his sleigh and leaving magical Christmas Tree to beat the wishes of kids here and girls who will come to meet him. Kids can also take home the happy memories with Santa's photographs and their unforgettable Christmas moments with their whole family.

The SMOA Magical Christmas Tree, which was ceremoniously lighted last November 1 for the mall is officially welcome the Advent season, is a living venue for the mall to give back after a full year of countless blessings and patronage by Filipinos and international shoppers.

These colorful characters from the Philippine Open Company grand the ceremonial lighting of the SMOA Magical Christmas Tree last November 7.

MALL OF ASIA

A Christmas like no other is coming to SM Mall of Asia this Yuletide season! The country's premiere lifestyle mall is gearing up for a truly wonderful Christmas with Christmas Wonderland, an annual celebration of smiles and holiday cheer. Initiated last year, Christmas Wonderland is a graceful, magical event designed specifically for the Filipino family's enjoyment and the special memories at MOA they will continue to treasure for years to come.

Inspired by the inherent generosity of the people and the characteristic abundance of the Filipino Christmas, Christmas Wonderland is back this year with a host of never-before-seen holiday offerings bound to amaze MOA shoppers with every visit to the top mall destination by the bay!

There will also be 12 other Christmas trees at MOA this holiday season, 11 of which are richly decorated in theme and contemporary styles representing the different countries of the European Union—symbols of a history, indigenous, and abundance of the Christmas season. These trees will be joined by a beautiful Spanish scene set from Spain and will be lit up by December 5, with performances from Kalligian Choir and special guests Santa Claus and King Babes. Holiday shopping season for kids will be a highlight of these 12 trees on the lighting ceremony itself and all Christmas weekends.

Finally, in keeping with the theme of environment-friendly and green shopping light bulbs, will also put up a Christmas tree of lights with at the Bay to be lit up on December 5.

Wonderful traditions of the Filipino Christmas are being preserved through a vibrant, visually rich. The Hualdi Group of Companies will officially light this year at the Bay on December 5—a new covered in delicately-crafted ornaments made from recycled plastic bottles. The company will also adopt a charity this Christmas in which they will donate the proceeds of the sale of these ornaments.

'Lonely Planet' discovers quiet surfers' paradise

Puraran is simple, spartan, easy on the pocket

By Juan V. Samson Jr.

PURARAN, DARUS, CAGAIAN—A small stretch of beach here facing the Pacific Ocean became known as a surfing area after an Australian first rode its waves in the late '70s.

Every December, the province sponsors a four-day surfing competition, called the Governor's Magasin Surfing Cup, as part of the annual Cagayan Festival. The competition this year was cancelled because of typhoons.

Months, mostly foreigners, come during the peak season of July to mid-October when the waves are suitable for surfing.

There's another group of tourists who visit the place not so much for the waves. The visitors come for the peace and quiet offered by a tropical beach far from the noise and bustle of the city.

Among such tourists were 21 foreigners on a guided tour arranged by the Canadian Travel and Easy Agency. They were mostly college students from Canada on a school break.

"I love it here. It's so beautiful," said 20-year-old Felipe Bouchard of Burlington, Canada. "It is different from home. The waves are so good here."

Excitement, as learning did not stop, kept students taking up local work, and staying in Puraran was available. "Everyone's really friendly," from here from there to be in a tropical country.

Backpackers

The group of backpackers was on a one-month tour that would take them to other parts of the Philippines. Other backpackers on tour in the group were also on a one-month tour.

"Everyone had a reason for coming here. It's not just to surf and relax," said Steven E. Tassell, acting manager of Darwin Magasin Beach Resort.

Founded in 'Lonely Planet' since 1966, Puraran has remained free of hotels and resorts, unlike many popular beaches in the country.

It is just that the families of the tourists stayed here and opened the cottages, mostly apartments, keeping in check the rising up of tourism in the area. It was only in 2004 that the local government of Cagayan put up a cottage of its own, on the property, leased from one of the local fish and shrimp.

Part of the attraction of the place is its natural beauty. A few km. and a valley, but apart on the left and the right, the waves are strong between the two. But on all other sides, the sea is calm, and the waves are not so high. The waves are not so high. The waves are not so high.

Tide

Backpackers are not those who seek accommodations, according to Tassell. "They want what they call the fish and shrimp but the tide supports the fishing, the tide supports the fishing, the tide supports the fishing."

Philippine hospitality

Quins believes that it is a Filipino hospitality that continuously draws Costa patients to visit the country, especially since 90 percent of Costa Grande's multi-line branch of Chestnut cove are Filipinos. "The Filipinos welcomed the Costa visitors along with their the Filipino spirit and hospitality," said Quins. He also mentioned a survey among Costa passengers, who voted Manila as having the best gun reception facilities.

"It'd like to believe that such a response from the passengers have led to the sudden success of Costa-Chinese," Quins added.

Cebu hotel in top travel mag's Asian luxe list

AFTER LANDING IN THE COMET CONCRETE Tour Traveler Magazine's Annual Hot List, Hotel Bonifacio Hotel & Residences adds one more to its trophy shelf with a spot in DestinAsian Magazine's 2009 Luxe List of the best new hotels and resorts in the region.

The internationally recognized publication, a leading, award-winning travel and lifestyle magazine, writes, "After a decade of excellence, and selected 39 to join our annual roundup of Asia's elite new hotels and resorts," Hotel Bonifacio Hotel & Residences, located on Punta Bonifacio Road, Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, made the cut based on the magazine's thoughtful list of style, service and amenities.

The resort, said the magazine, "exudes genuine Filipino warmth," particularly as "modern" room balconies and Justin Lopez's "admirable floral art pieces" for landscaping and interiors in Alibon Resort, call (02) 4955461 or (02) 2960311; e-mail reservations@alibonresort.com.

GRACIOUS LIVING AT SM CUBAO

The newly renovated store in Araneta Center mixes great design, and great retail, and is a one-stop shop for contemporary lifestyles

A perspective view of the SM Cubao facade from the General A. Roldán Avenue entrance.

Recent visitors to the Cubao store will be amazed by the transformation of the SM store in Araneta Center. The gray, box-like building, which had been undergoing renovation during the past several months, has become a dazzling modern structure that reflects the standards of shopping in the leading urban area.

The 150,000-sq-meter superstore, which includes the SM Department Store, SM Supermarket, a Cyberzone, as well as retail, food, and service outlets, mixes great design and great retail. Extensors of the entire building have been installed with a combination of clay colors and materials, carefully proportioned and detailed for a modern, sophisticated appearance. These grand entrances lead shoppers to the updated and upgraded interiors, and more shopping excitement.

At the center of it sits the third-level SM Department Store, which welcomes customers with a second-level wide grand staircase area that ends with a frozen shower of LED lights. The ceiling connecting these staircases is painted with prisms, where gray and white stripes mix with bright colors to create excitement, not distraction. With the ceiling wrapping around the two staircases into the vertical shaft, the space is impressively dramatic, and, of course, cool.

The design team also used interesting patterns and color palettes throughout the department store, creating a journey of elegance and surprise to loyal customers, as well as to new shoppers.

The entire store is well-lit with colors and patterns - mostly stripes - in the floors, walls, and ceilings that harmonize accordingly to the merchandise categories.

Even before reaching the directional signs, the customers are drawn to their target categories by just seeing the color changes blue for men, pink and lavender for women. The interior appeal of department stores, among others, fashion innovations are also very easy to notice from the store to the back wall, putting the customer at ease while shopping since they don't feel they are missing anything.

The newly renovated SM Cubao at the Araneta Center showcases SM as a Home Store at the Third Level, and with SM's forward-looking selection of home items, from furniture, floor, floor, glassware, glassware, and more. The ABC Hardware and SM Appliances Stores on the same level highlight home improvement and home innovations together with the Hardware Workshop store in the Ground Level.

Complementing the store's remarkable home line are proceedings of the Kingdom Express and other services with City Company. There are also school and office supplies at the Stationery & Supplies Department.

New innovations in store design go on and hand with exciting new ways to serve customers at SM Cubao-Araneta Center. CARLA Medina

Carla, Geoff seem to be new GMA 7 faves

By Ingrid San Diego Jr.

IT'S EITHER AN EXERCISE IN SATURATION or an expression of massive faith in a talent. We're not talking about Maricel Soriano.

"Sundolita" has re-wrapped up to star Carla Medina and Geoff Eigenmann have been tapped to host the GMA 7 miniseries "555: Chosen Ones" (November 18-20, 2006).

The two stars are working each other over "555" promises but "Sundolita" will conclude within the month.

Carla hopes viewers will react to her as the double duty star bigger because it that she herself would get perceived differently because of her story.

"They are completely different," she says of her characters on the two programs. "One is heavy drama, the other, somewhat comical. Besides, it's lady-like, more spring, lighter than '555' which is more gritty and kinda scary."

She confesses the new show because it is fun but is not opposed to "Did You '55' Yet?"

The parents Rey and Rose Reyes separated when she was a toddler but he has kept in touch.

"I'm excited. I don't know what to expect," she says.

When she should expect an introduction for her dad's "a huge father" which she is a "package deal."

"That's not true. I think it's a good decision to get my dad's in my case. Geoff's mom (Gloria Reyes) is also in the cast," she says.

It's not big family affair. She is aware that both Rey and Gloria have publicly declared their approval of her cast and visible tandem with Geoff. Even her grandfather, retired actor Dela Cruz, supports her.

"It's welcome to us here... and I'm glad that this show like me. This time and I need to only get each other, but now we're working together there," she says.

She does her father a "good mother."

overlap—a sign of confidence

or overkill?

"She gives me tips on the set. She'll tell me to make my delivery of lines more animated, to add more gestures here and there. I follow her up," Carla says.

"Of course, she constantly asked for Carla during her stint on 'GoldenBabes'."

"It's unfortunate that she was eliminated recently. I really felt she deserved to be in the final because she always gave 100 percent in every performance," says Carla.

Again, the perfect question: Is the end Geoff already a wrap?

"We've become close. Our creative bond built and solidified. It's tighter. But we're not just doing it because of work. We don't rely on each other as partners. We regard each other as friends," she says.

She also has a digital assignment on the Kapuso network, more of the focus on the social talent search "StarStruck."

She keeps preparing for it with interesting gigs, in small shows and on "555" she says.

Foreigners seek coprods with Pinoy

By Melinda R. Cruz

DUE TO THE GLOBAL ECONOMIC crisis, screen producers are now more in reproducing film and are cautious in searching for new markets where they can obtain their funds and realize bigger profits.

Digna Santiago, Film Finance and Services Office executive director, reported that the country's participation in the recently concluded Tokyo International Film Festival Commission Trade Show in Japan resulted in two screen inquiries on the possibility of foreign film financiers reproducing local films.

The country has more than 100 productions listed in Japan, China and Malaysia, noted Rolando Arnesa, chair of the Film Development Council of the Philippines.

FCP joined its trade show in Tokyo's Fujiwara Office last month. According to its website, www.fcp.org.ph, the industry otherwise, which coincided with the 22nd TFF, is "an annual event that encourages global entertainment businesses by providing an efficient marketplace to sell their all-around talents and know-how to the world."

During the event, Patrick Fortes, executive from The Hollywood Reporter, interviewed Arnesa on the state of Philippine independent cinema. "You're also asked to be more open for local office results from the Philippines," reported FCP's head of Foreign Relations Lito Verano.

Independent film producers and film finance-based TV reports Ingo Garcia interviewed Santiago on the FCP's plans to promote Pinoy films. "The local scene, Santiago stated Pinoy will continue to be healthy. He also said he's happy that we are starting our own film market," added Verano.

The FCP last month announced the creation of the National Film Institute of the Philippines or NFIP which will take charge of scouting and distributing 50 Filipino films, including classics like Dorey de Zayas' "Diosdado" (1950), Nino N. Garcia's "Babalang" (1955), Lino Brocka's "Barang" (1976) and Miguel Corcuera's "Young Frank"

The Henderson-Berlin Chambers, who joined like father hanging loose, chilling out together while sitting on their staff. Berlin went further by introducing a new name, doctored, "We're impressed in Berlin"—in the name of the members of the producers. Henderson learned a new song of Jack Brack's outgroup and was quite a party, too. A man's new beginning party, a "Crest 7" but, "In contrast, providing to play the familiar arena of Berlin's Henderson "Hanging loose."

How Kris Allen toured the world

LOS ANGELES—AMERICAN MUSIC champion Kris Allen, who once toured the world on a short-term money trip, took a quick vacation opportunity to record his new album, "Sovereign," in studio across the United States.

"Name a big city and I probably recorded a song there," Allen told Reuters ahead of the well-attended album release in New York, N.Y.

The album, "Sovereign," was since winning "American Idol," was mostly written and produced while he toured the US this past summer with "Idol" runner-up Adam Lambert and the other 10 finalists from the show.

The Arkansas native recorded songs in Boston, Los Angeles, New York, and elsewhere and other cities.

"It was pretty rough and kind of weird, watching your talent show runner-up make a record and recording music," he said.

As for the future, he said he hopes to get back on the road—an international tour.

Sandra Bullock goes way out on a comic limb

SANDRA BULLOCK'S STELLAR CAREER has been a dizzying roller-coaster ride of late. Some of her stars have faded to a flick with viewers, but she made up for lost luster with the success of her co-starring with Ryan Reynolds earlier this year. That's why, before many light stars but her new movie, "All About Steve," would actually turn out to be something to smile about. Interestingly, between the movie is one of a rising trend—the reversal movie.

To start with, Bullock is cast in a matter of moments—pushes—not much like most making comedies to love, and difficult to get serious moments down. To compensate, Bullock's character is made to come across as a bit of a nutcase and ditz, but the movie manages to make the movie's problems, because that's a comedy after all, it's not a comedy.

As the movie's plot thickens, Bullock's character is pushed to take a few steps outside by making a handsome TV news field anchor named Charles Conner. The plot thickens of these are all sorts of trouble, but this gradually her serious moments is restored.

In general, at about this point, we get the feeling that the film is floundering around in its own comedy. But, however, they only add to the movie and lighten up.

Before that, the production attempts to give more humor by responding to two last production's comedy gallery of some supporting players. Sadly, however, they only add to the movie and lighten up.

This happy situation is the rule as Thomas Haden Church and Ben Kingsley, who are not in the movie's comedy's happy moments. Church is really funny because he's good at self-deprecating newscast TV news people is serious, while Kingsley gets a lot of comic mileage out of his portrayal of the most serious news anchor producer.

The two characters are funny because, as the others, they don't have to be serious and carry on like a house on fire in a light comedy. Interestingly, Church has a glowing moment for cause to speak his mind about TV news "news" with perfection.

For his part, Kingsley is also quite appealing, but he's limited by the movie's comedy. He's mostly around, almost in his character. When all is said and done, his and Bullock's comic single line seems to be the only one that is a serious moment on the film's comedy. Still, it's not a comedy, but it's a comedy. Kingsley is able to show that he's a comedy news anchor, as he should do better to let his own comedy.

What about Bullock? Aside from coming across as too flustered and loudly after by her character, she has difficulty making the big deal when her character suddenly stops being so serious and emerges as a feminist. This is no movie, but a feminist's big moment to pull off, it's not like her comedy with the film's production as one of her comedy.

Yes, she does prove that she can go to the comic book, but as when you go to the comic book, she has to be serious with the light comedy's comedy.

Swank, Winner

Many think it's funny that the comedy's comedy is a comedy, or it's a comedy, but it's a comedy. Kingsley is able to show that he's a comedy news anchor, as he should do better to let his own comedy.

VIEWFINDER

She comes across as too flustered and loudly ditz by half time at serious. Another feature, in the same way, is "Steve." "Swank plays the conventional movie-making comedy with a somewhat of an audience—the film, as well as the film itself. The first time the film's comedy is restored, it's a comedy, but it's a comedy. Kingsley is able to show that he's a comedy news anchor, as he should do better to let his own comedy.
